The Rift makes a comeback, this time wriggling its way through the fabric of reality in the Burroughs region. The first mice you're going to encounter are scientist mice. Any sort of Rift cheese type will help you attract them. The objective is to gather Rift Mist Canisters. Upon releasing the mist, the population will change and you will encounter different mice. Next up are creepy Rift versions of the mousoleum mice. These drop Terre Ricotta potions. Arm Terre Ricotta cheese and keep misting to crank it up another notch and hunt rifty Digby Dirt Dwellers. From those you can collect Polluted Parmesan potions. Parmesan attracts the absolute cream of the Burroughs Rift, twisted Toxic Spill mice. Your objective is to loot a Null Gauntlet and then collect Rift Circuitry. Without the Null Gauntlet you are not allowed to handle anything in the Shops, so catching the Menace of the Rift who drops this as loot is unavoidable. Naturally, this is no cakewalk. You might want to use strong charms once you get in reach. High power is more effective than high luck for the bosses in general, and it's also true in this region. Once you have the Null Gauntlet, make it your next goal to collect 50 Rift Circuitries. All the bosses drop them. Since the Monstrous Abomination can be attracted by storebought cheese, this is the one people usually opt for. On your way there you can use Rift Vacuum charms, which are quite effective for the regular mice and also make them drop Calcified Rift Mist, an ingredient in crafting Rift Power charms. These are even better suited for hunting the mice of the Rift, but don't kid yourself, they are still relatively weak compared to your stronger charms when it comes to boss hunting. For that purpose I would suggest charms like Regal, for example. What makes the region interesting is its mechanics. Apart from a Gauntlet style tiered build where you move from one set of the population to the next, there's the misting. You start at 0, naturally, and you can go all the way up to 20. Between 0 and 6 you will only be able to attract a certain part of the mice that are available with the particular cheese you armed. This is the Yellow. After that you get to the Green, and all the mice are available, except for the boss(es) will show up. Monstrous Abomination and BBBB are the only ones to be attracted in the Red by storebought cheese and Terre Ricotta respectively. The Red constitutes mist hunt #19 and #20. If you want to stay in the Red, you have to constantly mist and de-mist, which makes it quite a pain and requires high levels of hunting activity on your part. If you can't be bothered, like me and many others, just keep misting and stay at 20. You'll lose mist in the process, but honestly, it beats realizing that you went down to 18 again and have to switch to lesser charms and put in another hunt to get into the Red once more. In the beginning you want to stay in the Green as much as you can, although short dips into the Yellow are fine, the mice will still drop loot there. It depends on how much mist you have/want to save. You will occasionally get mist on the way, and when you de-mist and your mist numbers will fall, you're still attracting the same mice and working towards your goal, occasionally even looting new Mist Canisters, so you don't need to start with hundreds of them to begin with. Between 50 and 100 is a good start. Depending on your donation frequencies it can be helpful to use Magical String in conversion of potions and maybe even for hunting. If you don't donate a lot (or not at all) and don't have a lot of Magical String, I'd still advise to use it for conversion of Polluted Parmesan potions, because these are hard to come by and to stock up on a decent amount of Parmesan cheese is a hassle. Summary: * Use storebought cheese to gather mist. Start misting to gather Terre Ricotta potions. * Stay in the Green. Use Terre Ricotta cheese to collect Polluted Parmesan potions. * Mist up to the Red and use Parmesan to catch a Menace of the Rift, looting a Null Gauntlet. * Obtain 50 Rift Circuitries to buy one of the two traps. Use Rift Vacuum charms while gathering mist and potions. Burroughs Rift is a hunting location in Rift Plane region. It requires the minimum rank of Duke/Duchess and the Rift Detector to access. Mouse attraction pool is affected by Mist level and cheese used. The main goal of this location is to catch Menace of the Rift to obtain a Null Gauntlet. Mist Mechanic In Burroughs Rift, a Mist Mechanic is in effect. The mist level is between 0 - 20. The Hunter can choose whether or not misting. When misting, a Mist Canister is consumed per hunt, and the mist level increase by 1 per hunt. When not misting, the mist level decrease by 1 per hunt. The Mist level determines the attraction pool: Certain changes in mist level and Mist Canister supply generate additional journal entries: Mist level increases from 0 to 1: I have opened my first Mist Canister and mice have begun to emerge from within the mist... Mist level increases from 17 to 18: Nearly there! There is almost enough mist in the air that the biggest and strongest mice will start appearing! I need to be sure I'm ready to face them and have the strongest trap setup possible! Mist level increases from 17 to 18 with String Cheese armed: Oh no! I've almost released enough mist to attract the biggest and strongest mice! I should turn off my mister before it do serious damage to my atmosphere. The last of Mist decreases from 1 to 0: The last of Mist dissipates from 1 to 0: The last of Mist Canisters and begin misting again. I ran out of Mist Canisters and stopped releasing mist. I should use String Cheese to hunt mice that drop Mist Canisters in order to replenish my supply. Heads-Up Display The HUD is divided into 3 smaller parts: Left The HUD tracks the Hunter's inventory of: The Hunter can arm those cheese and brew those potion from the HUD, Middle The HUD displays: The Hunter's inventory of Mist Canister A button to mist/unmist with a tooltip on what to expect when clicking the button: Click to start releasing mist! While misting, you'll release one Mist Canister into the air per hunt. Try to keep your Mist Meter in the green zone to attract mice worth the most points, gold, and loot! Click to stop releasing mist! While not misting, one mist will dissipate per hunt. Try to keep your Mist Meter in the green zone to attract mice worth the most points, gold, and loot! Right The HUD displays an image of some mice in the attraction pool depends on the mist level and cheese used. Mice All mice found in Burroughs Rift are part of the Burroughs Rift sub-group of Rift Walkers group, except for the Tomb Exhumer which is an Event Mouse. These mice have Rift as their main power type weakness. Other power types can still be used but are less effective. Mist level and cheese used affect mouse attraction pool and in turn affects loot drops. Undead String Emmental attracts the same mice regardless of mist level. This place is spooky! First up, you'll want to arm some string cheese and collect Mist Canisters from local mice. Then, start opening them up to attract spookier, stronger mice. Pay close attention to your mist meter while you're hunting. Not enough mist and you won't attract any mice worth catching. Too much mist and you'll attract big bruisers that are too much to handle for now! Hunt in the mist for a while and you'll start collecting Terre Ricotta potions. The cheese you create from these will allow you to hunt new and scarier mice. These new mice will occasionally drop Polluted Parmesan potions, which allow you to create the rarest and most dangerous cheese in this rift! When using Polluted Parmesan, you'll want to hunt only in the deepest areas of the mist, and try to catch The Menace Of The Rift. He has a fantastic treasure - a Null Gauntlet - which allows you to equip Rift Vacuum Charms. These charms siphon tiny amounts of energy from rift mice and condense it into Calcified Rift Mist - the main ingredient in creating rift charms! Finally, once you've collected your Null Gauntlet and created some powerful charms, it's time to go back into the depths of the mist. The mice there drop Rift Circuitry, which you can use to craft two new powerful Rift Power traps and turn the tables on the rift mice! It's a long list and a tall order, hunter, and the mice here are more powerful than most, but I know you can do it, so have at it!
